It was September 11th, that time of year again when Americans remembered how precious life is. Little Lady Grace and Big Brother David were too young to have witnessed what happened on that terrible day, so Mom and Dad explained it to them.

“Remember how terrible September 11th was, sweetheart?” Dad asked Mom with a somber voice.

“I hope I never have to witness a day like that again,” Mom responded with sadness.

“Do you think the little ones understand what happened on that day?” Dad asked Mom.

“I don’t know. What do you think about us talking to them about it?” Mom asked Dad.

“Yes, that’s a good idea. We should,” Dad said before calling out “David! Grace! Please come here we need to speak with you!”

David and Grace ran across the house. Both of them jumped onto the couch like excited little children.

“David, Grace, do you know what happened today?” Mom asked them.

“I made some pretty little bracelets in my room. And later today David and I are going to swing in the backyard,” Grace said with excitement.

“I keep seeing the T.V. talk about buildings and 9-1-1. Is today a special day for cops or something?” David asked his parents.

“Before you two were born, some bad people tried to hurt America. They hurt and even killed a lot of people. It was a very sad day. We remember the bad day in order to become a better country,” Dad said with a soft voice. “I know that may sound strange but you will understand as you grow up.”

“Grace, remember when you lost ¹Hop Along during Easter? Remember how sad it made you feel? Well, sometimes you have to feel sad in order to remember something good. You were so sad you lost Hop Along you had to pray to God to help you find Hop Along. That is what America does today. They have to remember the bad so that they can remember the good,” Mom said with a soft voice.

“Yeah, it made me want to do my best to protect Hop Along and not lose him again. That is why he is in a cage in my room. Accidentally losing him made me remember how important he is to me and how precious he is,” Grace said.

“Yeah, and sometimes when I treat Grace badly, like when I ²used her art kit without asking her and ³stealing candy from her on Halloween, it made me realize just how bad that was. It made me feel sad I did that to her. It taught me how to change into a better brother. Some sometimes remembering bad things makes you want to do good,” said David with joy in his voice.

“Exactly. I am proud of both of you. You both are growing up to be so wise,” Mom said.

“Today in America, we remember September 11th so that Americans might treat each other better. A lot of good people died that day, including firemen and policemen who tried to save people.” Dad said.

“Do you remember Uncle Mike? The fireman?” Mom asked Grace and David.

Both David and Grace shook their head, “no.”

“Uncle Mike loved God very much and all he wanted to do was help people so he became a fireman,” Mom stuttered while trying to hold back tears in her eyes. “I remember when I was a little girl, about your age Grace, my kitty cat got stuck in a tree and Uncle Mike helped me,” Mom started to cry.

“Uncle Mike helped me get the job I have.” Dad said “I knew that I liked to help people too and so he encouraged me to become a policeman.”

“On September 11th, Uncle Mike was trying to rescue people and he ended up dying,” Mom said with tears in her eyes.

“You see, it is important that we help each other,” Dad said while comforting Mom. “We need each other especially during the bad times.”

“That’s why I want to be just like you Daddy. I also want to help people just like Uncle Mike,” David said with joy in his heart.

Mom smiled at David, “I am so proud of you.” She could not stop crying.

“Mom, do not cry. It is okay. Uncle Mike is in Heaven waiting for us. God probably made him the head of the fire department in Heaven,” David said trying to comfort his Mom.

“I know he is in Heaven, sweetheart,” Mom said while wiping tears from her eyes.

“Just remember that today, when bad things happen, we need to help each other,” Dad said with contentment. “Do you understand what September 11th means now?”

“I understand what September 11th means,” David said.

“All the people that risked their lives on September 11th are called fallen heroes,” Mom said.

“God loves fallen heroes,” Grace said with a smile on her face.

“He sure does,” Dad said while smiling at both David and Grace.

“I want to be a hero,” David said with excitement.

“I want to be a hero too,” Grace joined in.

Everyone hugged each other, laughed, and had a good rest of the day.

The End!

What Did We Learn From This Story?

The entire family remembered just how important it is for good people to do all they can to help others. Especially, when bad people try and hurt others like they did on September 11th. There is no better feeling than to know you helped someone who needs you.

Do you want to help people that need you?

Do you want someone to help you when you need it?

Jesus Christ, the God of the Universe says that no greater love is there than giving yourself to someone in need. ⁴John 15:13 in the Holy Bible tells us exactly what Jesus Christ would like us to do. Jesus Christ in the Bible sacrificed himself for the whole world so that we would know how to become better people. (⁵Romans 5:8)

In this story, Big Brother David and Little Lady grace learned about sacrifice. Do you want to be like Uncle Mike and learn how to help others in need? If you do, please pray to Jesus Christ this simple prayer:

Dear Jesus Christ,
I would like to be a hero to do good things
for you while I am on Earth.
Will you teach me how to do good for others?
I would really like to help others who need me.
Thank you Jesus For Hearing Me.
Amen.
